

Connections to one core are meant to represent connections to all n cores, but are left away for a better overview